

Anh Dang

Fowler High School Class of 2009
Liberal Arts Academy

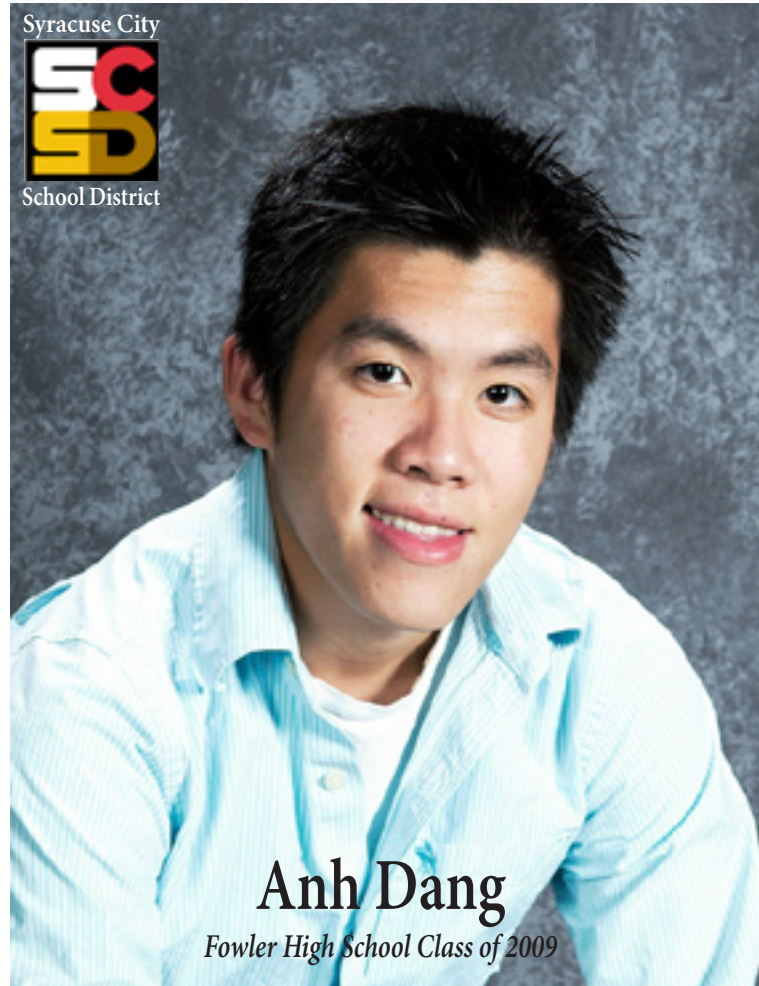

Anh Dang is in the top ten percentile of the Class of 2009 at Fowler High School. He has been accepted to several distinguished colleges and universities and will attend the L.C. Smith College of Engineering and Computer Science majoring in Computer Engineering at Syracuse University in the fall of 2009.

As an AVID student for the past four years, Anh has achieved both inside and outside the academic arena. He has maintained High Honor Roll and Honor Roll throughout his entire high school career, has been a member of the soccer team for the past four years and on varsity for the past two. He has volunteered for many different organizations such as the Leukemia Society and the Jenna Foundation.

Anh's biggest influence has been his family. He states that they have stressed the importance of education which has really helped him achieve his goals at Fowler High School.

Syracuse City

School District

Anh Dang
Fowler High School Class of 2009